Ordering the Books

Kit and Sam are putting their books back on the shelf, in alphabetical order. Can you help them by saying the letter names on each book?

Kit, Sam, Mum and Dad were camping in the woods.
After a lovely day playing, it was beginning to get dark.

“Let’s light a camp fire tonight,” said Dad. The family collected some sticks and Dad lit a fire. They had toasted marshmallows and looked up at the twinkling stars.

Mum pointed up into the night sky. “See that bright star?” she said to the children. “It’s called the North Star.”

“Ahh,” said the children, looking up in amazement.

The image shows the letters 'a' and 'r' in a large, white, rounded font with a thick black outline. The letter 'a' is decorated with several light blue, three-pointed starburst shapes. The background is a light grey gradient with a faint illustration of a tent and trees under a starry night sky.

a and r are partners. They say ar.

ar - ar - ar - we see a shiny star,
Sitting up there in the dark sky.
It shines so bright in the autumn night,
And more will be out by and by.

The family are watching the campfire flames swirling and twirling.
As they watch, the flames seem to be making pictures.
Can you write down what shapes the fire seems to be making?

Mum told the children the names of some other stars. “Ara is my favourite constellation,” she said. It was getting late. Kit and Sam were tired. “Before you go to bed, shall we decide what to do tomorrow?” Mum asked.

“That sounds good to us,” said Mum and Dad. “It isn’t too far. We can go in the car then park near the market.” Kit and Sam yawned as they climbed into their sleeping bags. Soon, they were fast asleep under the twinkling stars.
